Three Cheers for Timeless Design LUMAS Celebrates the Bauhaus Centennial with Curated Art

Berlin, March 27, 2019 – Bauhaus is still considered one of the most significant art schools, exerting an influence over modern architecture and design that can still be seen today. Following the motto of “Form follows function,” Bauhaus birthed numerous classic designs and architectural highlights. In celebration of Bauhaus’s 100-year anniversary, LUMAS art gallery is presenting works dedicated to Bauhaus architecture, from abstract to true-to-life to miniature models.

British brothers Robert and Gavin Paisley celebrate the beauty of the industrialized world by crafting extremely detailed models of architectural masterpieces under the moniker of Chisel & Mouse. In addition to creating 3D cityscapes of Paris, Amsterdam, and Berlin, they draw inspiration from iconic buildings and reproduce them in scale models. Sticking to the form follows function principle, their Empire State Building or Bauhaus in Dessau are gorgeous bookends and design objects at the same time.

For the Bauhaus centennial, a mini version of the popular plaster model “Bauhaus Dessau” is available exclusively at LUMAS.

Shortly before the sun rises and awakes a city, there is a very special atmosphere. Horst and Daniel Zielske capture this perfectly in their work. Their photographs are typically taken during the morning blue hour when the streets are still empty.

Their new series is dedicated to Bauhaus architecture, prompting them to visit Dessau, the city that had a decisive influence on the style. The clean lines and cubic forms of the buildings are truly in the spotlight in these photographs, showing us the artists’ talent for detail shots.

The new pieces “Bauhaus” and “Bauhaus II” are available starting in April.

Jens Hausmann's art reflects his fascination with spaces, landscapes, and perspective. Using the interplay between light and shadow, he puts puristic buildings in the spotlight. Free floating terraces, massive picture windows, driveways, and yards with large swimming pools are characteristic of his work. The owners of these spectacular houses are rarely to be seen, only possessions like sun chairs or cars that hint at their lifestyles. The clear architectural formal vocabulary reflects a Bauhaus influence.

“Avantgarde House” is available in sizes of 23.6” x 18.9” or larger starting at $599.

A typical characteristic of Berlin-based artist Sabine Wild's work is horizontal and vertical hatching that gives the pieces a shimmering texture. Her fascination with architecture is evident in her new photographs from Dessau. The abstract visual vocabulary creates an exciting contrast between art and reality. The true reality can only be guessed at.

The new works “Bauhaus Dessau II” and “Bauhaus Dessau III” are available starting in April. These artworks start at $699 in sizes of 23.6” x 35.4” or larger.
